"Be instant in season and out of season" is a motto worthy of any man who advertises. In the dull season one who has things to sell has need of all the trade he can get. He may deem it prudent to cut down his space somewhat but if he be wise will not let his advertisements disappear altogether. Like the sun, the advertisement should be seen every day in the year.—Printers' Ink.

"Lest we be forgotten" is an excellent motto for men in trade. It suggests the duty of persistence in advertising. The memory of the public is very short.—Printers' Ink.

PITHY POINTS.

Taylor surely didn't learn all his bad tricks since he landed at Indianapolis.

The trusts will play a full hand in aid of the Republicans at this fall's election.

We suggested when Taylor went to Indiana, that he wouldn't remain "innocent" long.

It's a wonder some people don't claim that it was Jack Chinn who cut that street car caper at Indianapolis.

The trusts are trusted to control almost everything else and we suppose they might as well be permitted to control elections.

About the only chance people have to get anything out of the trusts is at election times, when they will let loose of some of their boodle.

If Taylor is forced to stay at Indianapolis there's a big chance that he will land at the bad, elder or no elder of the Presbyterian Church.

The trusts can be trusted to look out for their own interests at this fall's election, and that this won't mean any detriment to Republican interests is well understood.

"I feel as if I should fly to pieces." How often those words are on a woman's lips. They express to the uttermost the nerve racked condition of the body, which makes life a daily martyrdom. If this condition had come suddenly it would have been unbearable. But the transition was gradual. A little more strain each day on the nerves. A little more drain each day of the vitality. Any woman would be glad to be rid of such a condition. Every woman tries to be rid of it. Thousands of such women have been cured by Dr. Pierce's treatment with his "Favorite Prescription" when local doctors had entirely failed to cure.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.
